- An asterisk (*) indicates the oldest operating systems supported for the Genesys 7.x and Genesys 8.x Maintenance Interoperable Components, including AIX Power PC, HP-UX, and Solaris SPARC.
- eServices server components include Classification Server, Chat Server, E-mail Server, Interaction Server, Interaction Server Proxy, SMS Server, and Training Server. It also includes the following groups of servers: Web API (Web API Server, Web API Server for WebLogic, Web API Server for WebSphere, .NET Web API Server and Samples)
- For Microsoft products with sub-versions such as R1/R2, all versions are supported except as noted for the specific product.
- Genesys supports use of products on Oracle Linux, provided that the Oracle Linux distribution is 100% compatible with a Genesys-supported Red Hat distribution, and that the Oracle Unbreakable Enterprise Kernel is not used. Genesys will only support Oracle Linux based on testing and reproduction of any issues in the equivalent Red Hat Linux version; no investigation or testing will be performed on Oracle Linux itself. Support only applies to Oracle Linux versions 5.x and later.
- Web Collaboration is not supported on AIX.

Supported Database/DB Clusters

Notes:

- An asterisk (*) indicates the oldest databases supported for the Genesys 7.x and Genesys 8.x Maintenance Interoperable Components, including IBM DB2, Informix, MS SQL, Oracle, and Sybase.
- For Microsoft products with sub-versions such as R1/R2, all versions are supported except as noted for the specific product.
- Genesys Administrator 8.1+ does not require a database to operate. However, certain Genesys Administrator features do have access to databases, such as the Centralized logging and Outbound Contact. For these purposes, Genesys Administrator uses DB Server and, if a solution supports storing data in a particular database, Genesys Administrator can access it through DB Server.
- Genesys supports Genesys products on the database patch levels up to the latest currently available patch sets.
- Starting with release 8.5, all versions of Informix, and Sybase database support have been discontinued.

Supported Browsers

Notes:

- Genesys tests compatibility for all browsers announcing WebRTC and Flash plug-in technologies support. Thanks to our forthcoming continuous delivery model, we plan to minimize the delay between a browser’s compatibility announcement and its support by the Genesys Video Gateway. The same policy is valid for browsers updates. However, Genesys cannot be held responsible for any interface modification from browser vendors, or for any functional modification.
- The Genesys Video Gateway product is based on WebRTC technology from the IETF and W3C and Flash plug-in from Adobe. Browsers support for WebRTC signaling, media and security is still evolving at a fast pace. Browser vendors should maintain backward compatibility with these technologies.

Virtualization Platform Support

This page describes the virtualization platforms that have been tested and verified to interoperate with each listed Genesys product. The following tables provide references for Genesys products that were tested by Genesys.

- Virtualization may increase the processing load compared to native deployment on a given node. You should follow the recommendations and best practices discussed in the virtualization platform vendor's documentation.
- You should be aware of potential impact to performance and voice quality when deploying components that interface with RTP media streams, including Stream Manager, Genesys Voice Platform (GVP) Media Control Processor, and CPD Server. Although these components operate in a virtual environment, in some cases it may be necessary to limit call rates to achieve acceptable voice quality.
- It is strongly recommended that you test the proposed configuration under simulated production conditions, to ensure acceptable sizing and performance.

For other questions, contact Customer Care using their Care portal.

Notes:

- For ESXi, note the following:
 - ESXi 6.x covers all 6.x releases, including ESXi 6.0, 6.5, 6.7 and so on.
 - For ESXi 6.x support with Windows Server 2016, refer to the respective product SOE (Supported Operating Environment Reference) page in this document to determine the versions that support Windows Server 2016. If the versions in that page are higher than the versions identified in this table, use one of those versions. Otherwise, use the one of the versions specified in this table for that product.
 - Operating systems listed are for VMware support. Specific product support of the OS may be different. Please check the product operating system tables for OS supported by a specific product.
- Genesys does not recommend VMotion for RTP (Real-Time Protocol) based products as its over subscription might impact service quality. If your organization require using VMotion, contact your Genesys Representative.

Recent testing verified support for ESXi 7.x, if only on a single operating system. Because Genesys Info Mart is a Java-based application, there are unlikely to be operating system dependencies.

VMware Support Notes:

For products that require specialized cards (for example, Dialogic), you should rely on the card vendors and VMware for support and optimization.

Genesys does not support VMware's Virtual Infrastructure or Application and Infrastructure management products except as indicated in this table.

Best practices that have been defined by VMware and Genesys should be followed when implementing VMware virtualization. Refer to the Genesys Deployment on VMWare - Best Practices.

If license control is performed in a virtualized environment, either by running a FlexNet Publisher license server on virtual platforms or by using node-locked application license files, the host-id value returned by the virtual platform is used.

When using MAC addresses, it may be necessary to override the default and force the virtual platform to use a static (fixed) MAC address to avoid problems when virtual images are moved between physical machines. See FlexNet Publisher documentation on virtualization deployment for further details:

<http://support.flexerasoftware.com/main/Default.aspx>.
For other questions on deployment using virtualization, contact Customer Care using their Care portal.

About This Guide

Use these pages to dynamically access system-level information about the operating environments (operating systems, databases, and other support) required to run Genesys applications for releases 7.2 and higher.

Important

- If you're looking for system-level information for Genesys releases 7.1 and earlier, contact us and we'll contact the appropriate person to provide you with an answer.
- These Supported Operating Environment (SOE) Reference Guide pages are best viewed using the Firefox browser. Google Chrome and Safari are also supported.

Related Information

Genesys Products

Support of a product and version indicates that the software can run on the indicated third-party platform (operating system, database, browser, and so on). Questions/problems can be submitted to Customer Care, assuming the appropriate Maintenance agreement is in effect. Third-party vendor platforms may support a large number of features, far beyond what can be tested, or may have no impact on use with Genesys products. Support does NOT indicate a commitment to support any particular features of that operating system or database.

Notes:

- Only those applications specifically mentioned in this document are supported. For other applications or solutions not mentioned, please send your question to the appropriate Product Manager, or if not known, post your question in the Feedback section at the bottom of each SOE page.
- The tables in this document are based on the vendors' compatibility statements. Genesys may require customers to upgrade to a particular version level, operating system, or database. Unless specified, all versions between the minimum version and the latest version are supported.

Databases, Operating Systems, and Browsers

- Databases: Databases identified in the database tables are supported on the operating systems identified in the operating system tables. Databases that are not shown in the database tables are not supported.
- Operating Systems: Operating systems that are not shown in the operating systems tables are not supported.
- Browsers: Unless otherwise noted, browser plug-ins are not supported for the browsers identified in the browser tables. Only the browser is supported.

Maintenance and Interoperable Components

These components are backward-compatible between releases. The latest release of these interoperable components can be used as a maintenance release for previous releases. These components are known as maintenance interoperable components.

Patch Support Guidelines

Genesys products are not supported below the operating system and patch level specified in their installation package (IP) ReadMe file.

Unless otherwise specified in the IP release note or this document, Genesys products are supported as follows:

- Genesys software works with the latest patches for supported third-party software (Operating System, Databases, Virtualization Systems, Application/Web Servers). In the event of an issue, Genesys will work with the customer to address and resolve the problem.
- For a given Windows operating system: on all combinations of service packs and patches above the minimum level documented in the IP ReadMe file.
- For a given version of a UNIX or Linux operating system as supported in this document:
 - If this version is the same as the one specified in the IP ReadMe file; all patch configurations that include the minimum set of patches specified in this file are supported.
 - If this version is higher; all patch configurations are supported.
- For a given version of Java as supported in this document:
 - If this version is the same as the one specified in the IP ReadMe file; all patch configurations that include the minimum set of patches specified in this file are supported.
 - If this version is higher; all patch configurations are supported.

Notes:

- Genesys supports all Microsoft patches to Windows Servers as a matter of policy, unless noted otherwise in the operation systems table for the product/component.
- Genesys reserves the right to announce that some specific patch above the minimum level is not to be used for a given product. The information is available in the product's release note.

For further information, please refer to the Genesys Supported Media Interfaces Reference Manual.

End of Support

Genesys will formally announce end of support for major third-party vendor platforms listed in this SOE Guide. This is typically done 12-24 months in advance, via the Genesys customer newsletter. For a given vendor platform/version, the end of support notice will state the last Genesys X.Y release that will support it suite-wide, and the date when all support in all releases (last and prior) will end. When the end of all support date is reached, all entries for that platform/version will be removed from the SOE Guide. For a listing of global end of support dates, see Discontinued Support.

Definitions

- Server Components: The Server component tables include Genesys components that run as backend processes. Typically these are installed on an MS Windows or UNIX machine running a server type operating system. Those processes or components that perform the server function of a client-server relationship, but are built to run on workstation operating systems, are included in the user interfaces tables.
- User-Interfaces: The user interfaces tables apply to agent-facing and supervisor/administrator facing components.
 - Agent-facing components include Genesys components that run on a workstation operating system or GUI environment. These provide functionality typically used by agents, such as interaction handling and real-time statistics.
 - Supervisor/Administrator-facing components include Genesys components that run on a workstation operating system or GUI environment and provide functionality typically used by supervisors or administrators. Supervisors typically have real-time monitoring statistics, but may also have interaction handling capabilities. When an application contains both agent and supervisor capabilities, it is expected that all capabilities are supported on the same operating systems or GUI environments. Administrator capabilities include interaction with the configuration or management systems, routing design applications, and campaign setup applications.

How to Read the Tables in the Supported Operating Environment

This page describes how to read the tables in this document.

Tip

Many of the tables in this guide includes in-table search functionality. It is fast. Use the search box above the table to filter results to only those rows containing a match. Look for the search box above the tables:

The front page gives you a few tabs to drilldown by operating system, browser, database, as well as a quick access list of links to all the product pages.

Operating System Drilldown

On the OS tab, you can either view all supported operating systems from across all products in a given family of operating system (for example, all Windows or Mac versions). Or you can select a particular OS version and filter on that.

Viewing all versions in a family

To view all results for an OS family, select your OS family in the first dropdown and leave the filter by version dropdown unselected. Then click Update.

Filtering by specific OS version

To filter by a specific version, select your OS family first, then select the specific version in the filter by version dropdown, and click update.
